Job Description

The job description covers the scope of the job, but responsibilities may include any other reasonable tasks not mentioned in this job description, but associated with the job.

Job Title: Production Manager

Responsible to: The Artistic Director (AD) and Executive Producer (EP)

Responsible for: Production and technical crew

Background

The Michael Clark Company is a leading British contemporary Dance Company, presenting the works of the choreographer Michael Clark in the UK and internationally. The Company is an Associate Artist of the Barbican Centre and is supported by Arts Council of England and a range of international producers. Michael Clark is known for strong links with visual artists, for example Sarah Lucas and Peter Doig and other collaborators as well as having links to galleries and museums, such as Tate Modern.

To help deliver Michael Clark's vision, the Company is seeking to appoint the role of Production Manager. This position will have a proactive and collaborative role with responsibility for the technical elements of all Michael Clark Company productions. It will include national and international touring of existing pieces and the development of new work. In collaboration with the AD and other artistic collaborators the Production Manager will oversee the realisation of all technical aspects of the Company's projects, manage technical budgets and be responsible for technical staffing and schedules.

The Production Manager will be an excellent leader with exceptional skills and experience in the management of a touring production team - working on productions in theatres, museums, galleries and other spaces. They will also have strong knowledge of the sector, with extensive experience of touring, management and control of budgets, current knowledge of Health & Safety Regulations and excellent communication skills.
